Recently I switched to java world. I am using JEE & Struts 2 framework. I have developed web application which invokes different servlet and action class. I am interested to know is there a simple way to send mails using java? I need to send email only during user enters some email id and after that it should not send email again until he logs off from the system. Is there a way where i can handle or intercept the email sending method in jsp so that i can stop the mails from being send. Thanks in advance. A: Why would you want to stop it, if you have already authenticated the user? Well, consider something like this: // somewhere where you know you have an authenticated user (you can probably just inject it) MimeMessage message = MimeMessageHelper.buildTextPlainMail(authenticationInfo); // so, now let's send it: message.setFrom(new InternetAddress("removed@from.me", "Someone")); message.setRecipients(Message.RecipientType.TO, InternetAddress.parse("removed@to.me", false)); message.setSubject("Testing an alternative to "" + MessageFormat.format(mailingBody, "en", Locale.ENGLISH) + ""); mailSender.send(message); Then you
